“The organisers of AlgaeEurope have signed an exclusive 2-year media partnership with Algae Planet”

The organisers of the AlgaeEurope conference, DLG Benelux, have signed an exclusive media partnership with Algae Planet to promote the annual AlgaeEurope conferences.

The forthcoming AlgaeEurope conference will once again be held in a digital format from 7-9 December 2021. In 2022 the AlgaeEurope conference will take place in a physical format in Rome.

The media partnership between the organisers of AlgaeEurope and Algae Planet enables both parties to strengthen their position and benefit from each other's networks and expertise.

Algae Planet stands for:

- A friendly user interface, a robust search function, and easy to find information on people, products and processes;
- An editorial view that monitors the micro- and macro-algal solutions for climate change, human and animal food production, improved nutraceuticals, wastewater management, creating bio-materials and biofuels;
- An emphasis toward education with their “Algae Basics” area of the website for newcomers to the industry, authored by algae polymath — and Algae Planet Executive Editor — Dr. Mark Edwards.
- A place for manufacturers, suppliers and developers to spread their message using website-linked banners, video demos, and interactive “hot button” editorial.

For years AlgaeEurope has been one of the most comprehensive global conferences about science, technology and business in the Algae Biomass sector. One of the key successes is due to the close cooperation between EABA - European Algae Biomass Association and DLG Benelux.

More details on the program will be released shortly, more information about the AlgaeEurope conference can be found at www.algaeurope.org and www.algaeplanet.com
